Paris, May 23. — Lack of sleep didn't bother Capt. Charles Lindbergh on his flight from New York to Paris but sleet provided plenty of trouble, he told newspapermen in describing the trip.

The construction of the plane, with the pilot's seat sunk so low that periscopes alone enabled him to see, kept the wind from blowing on his face and thus prevented sleepiness, Lindbergh said.

"I encountered sleet in mid-Atlantic," he said. "Sleet forming on the front of the wings of a plane is capable of forcing it down in a few minutes, but when I struck the storm I was able to get above it quickly."

He flew ten hours in continual rain, sleet and fog and had to ascend to 10,000 feet to get above it, he said.

"It wasn't agreeable," he added. He said, however, that he had the advantage of good weather from New York to Newfoundland, which he considered unusual.

"One of the greatest dangers I faced was in landing at Le Bourget Field, when the crowd almost overwhelmed me," he said.

Lindbergh paid high tribute to Charles Nungesser and Francois Coll, missing French aviators.

"The Frenchmen's task was harder than mine," he said. "Conditions flying westward are bad, whereas everything was in my favor except the sleet storm."

"Nungesser possibly hit a similar storm. Moreover, the weather was terrible when he started. Airplanes were down all over the eastern United States."

"Nungesser also may have been forced to alight on the ice fields of North Newfoundland, in which case he didn't have a chance in a thousand."

"I steered by dead reckoning because I had no hands to spare to use a sextant. I used an earth induction compass and made the Irish coast within three miles of the place I had planned to arrive."

Lindbergh said he flew across France by sight rather than by map.

"I had studied the geography and topography of the section," he said, "and knew such features as the Seine and the location of towns easy to identify. I saw Paris far away. I had heard much of the bright lights of the city, and they guided me."

"The landing field was well lighted, but I flew over it several times to make sure it was Le Bourget and also to study out a suitable place to drop, as I was afraid of hitting the crowd."

"I started with 451 gallons of gasoline and used 12 an hour."

The rate of consumption for the 33 hour flight would mean a total consumption of 396 gallons, leaving 55 unused. As a matter of fact, 50 gallons remained in the tank. Lindbergh's estimate was exceptionally close, considering that he had not measured the amount of fuel remaining.

In reply to a question, Lindbergh said he considered commercial flights across the Atlantic feasible, but said mid-ocean landing places should be arranged.

In an earlier interview, given at the American embassy shortly after his arrival, Lindbergh said he could have flown another 500 or 1,000 miles.

The flier had just had a bath and was clad in the ambassador's pajamas. He looked as fresh as a college student about to dress for a prom as he sat on the edge of the bed and bashfully opened a cablegram. It was from his mother, and after reading it he thrust it under the spread.

When the newspapermen entered, Lindbergh arose.

"Sit down, you're tired," everyone shouted, but the flier drawled, "Well,

CORONER'S INQUEST TO EXAMINE BATH DEATH TOLL OF 44

Bath, Mich., May 23. — (UP)—With the last of her dead honored, Bath prepared today to complete the final chapter of the tragic volume written by Andrew P. Kehoe, tax-maddened treasurer of its school board who dynamited the Bath consolidated school with a toll of 44 lives. Clinton county authorities met to go through the perfunctory procedure of a coroner's inquest to fix the legal responsibility for an act already attributed to Kehoe.

CORONER'S JURY PROBES DEATH OF SCREEN STAR

Los Angeles, May 23.—(UP)—A coroner's jury was to hold an inquest today into the death of Gordon Standing, screen actor.

Standing died Saturday following an attack on him by a lion during the filming of a jungle picture at the Selig Zoo.

The inquest was to determine whether there was any negligence in connection with the lion's escape and attack according to the coroner.

It's more painful for me to sit than to stand."

He was seated in his plane for 33 hours without a rest.

He said he flew sometimes as low as ten feet above the ocean, at other times rising to 10,000.

"I did not see a ship during the day, but saw the lights of one at night," he said, explaining that fog had cut down visibility.

"I did not use caffeine or other stimulants to keep awake — just drank water. But I was pretty thirsty when I got here."

"I've never been in Paris before." Someone interrupted to suggest that he didn't lose much time coming when he once got started.

"That's right," he said. "I saw the Eiffel Tower from my plane and saw the flares of Le Bourget Field 30 miles away," he added.

"How much baggage did you bring?" he was asked.

"None," was the answer. "I brought a passport, but I didn't have a visa."

He looked sheepishly at the ambassador.

"We could have kept on for another 1,000 miles," Lindbergh said. "The old ship could have done that easily. I didn't pay much attention to economy, but even at that there's enough gas to go 500 miles more."

He was asked whom he meant by "We" when he had flown alone.

"Well, I was alone in the plane," he explained, "but then there's the designer of the ship and all that."

Asked how long he expected to stay in Paris, Lindbergh said, "I'd like to stay as long as I can, but I guess I'd better get back home as soon as possible."

He referred with some amazement to his striking welcome at Le Bourget Field.

"It was some welcome," he said. "It came pretty near being rough. I sort of feared for my ship."

"My compass was a great partner on the trip."

New Orleans, La., May 23. — Twelve hundred convicts today were heroes of the McCrae levee battle—a contest in which man pitted his strength against the elements at seemingly hopeless odds.

The prisoners may win, engineers admitted today after they had insisted since Thursday that the wall of the Atchafalaya river would "go out at any moment."

Result of the superhuman efforts of inmates of the state prison farm at Angola, aided by approximately 1,000 free negroes, is a barrier of sand bags, thirty feet high and almost as wide. Water sloshed near the top of the temporary levee, but so far the dyke had held back a flood which threatened to inundate parts of six parishes inhabited by 50,000 people.

Dirt, sandbags and gravel occupied every available corner of every available boat which reached McCrae in the last two days. There was no room for adequate food for the convict army. But they ate stale bread without complaining, worked in four hour shifts and then dropping in exhausted sleep.

The levee now holding back the Atchafalaya at McCrae is really a protection dyke, hastily constructed when the main levee and a first emergency levee gave way. The permanent levee caved in first, throwing the waters against an emergency barrier.

Then the wall which is now depended upon to save the territory between McCrae and the Mississippi river and south was constructed. The first temporary levee has been washed out.

Flood waters of the Atchafalaya combined with water from the Big Bend break and were creeping toward St. Martinsville in St. Martin parish. The flood will reach ten to fifteen more villages during the day, engineers said.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover was in Baton Rouge today conferring with members of the rehabilitation commission.

New Orleans, May 23.—Coast guard boats today took one hundred persons out of the lowlands between Breau Bridge and Lafayette today, where they were caught in the upper floors of their homes by suddenly rising flood waters.

The relief craft brought the refugees into Lafayette.

Vermillion river and Bayou Teche overflows had spread at an unexpected rate over the lowlands before the Acadian families could move out.

The levee at McCrae on the upper Atchafalaya levee, with an augmented force of 1,200 farmers at work, was still holding. With 2200 convicts, engineers held out hope the levee might hold.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 23.—(UP)—Three persons were suffocated today when their frame dwelling caught fire.

The dead:

Mrs. Barbara Wahl, 49; her son, Walter J. Wahl, 23, and Robert Hudson, 3, Mrs. Wahl's nephew.

The bodies of Wahl and Mrs. Wahl were found in the same room, and it was believed that Wahl died while trying to rescue his mother. Wahl was a patrolman.

LINDBERGH MADE KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOR

WAS DECORATED BY PRESIDENT
DOUMERGUE OF FRANCE

AMBASSADOR HERRICK ACCOMPANIED FLIER TO THE PALACE

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, May 23.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, American conqueror of the Atlantic, today became a Knight of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Lindbergh received the decoration and a kiss on either cheek in the private study of President Doumergue of France.

Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, who has had as much thrill out of this thing as the flier himself, accompanied Lindbergh to the Elysee Palace. They immediately entered the study and Doumergue stepped forward, seized his young visitor with both hands and kissed him. Then, the president pinned on Lindbergh's coat the coveted cross.

The ponderous machinery of the French government moved swiftly for Lindbergh. The appropriateness of giving him the Legion Cross was plain to the French from the moment his unlighted plane settled from the heavens Saturday night at 10:21, 33 hours and 30 minutes out from New York.

Arrangements for the audience with President Doumergue were made yesterday. A telephone call to the country home of Foreign Minister Briand obtained that Minister's enthusiastic approval this morning. A few minutes after noon the young man who had thoughtfully provided himself with letters of introduction so that he wouldn't be lonely after arriving here, was a member of the Legion.

Ambassador Herrick told the incident at the Elysee.

"Charles," said the 72-year-old diplomat with as much pride in his voice as though the flier was his grandson, "blushed like a baby. President Doumergue talked to him like a father to a son."

"You have done something wonderful," the president said, "I want you to tell your mother for me that she had a wonderful son, and I want you to take her my best wishes, and kiss her hand for me too."

The French have thought much of Mrs. Lindbergh teaching her chemistry class in Detroit while her boy was achieving what his fellow fliers describe as the greatest single-handed feat in aviation.

Lindbergh's visit to Mme. Nungesser as soon as he had recovered from the exhaustion of his flight, his graceful demeanor during the hours of adulation to which he has been subjected, and the fact that he still seems to feel that those letters of introduction were a necessary part of his equipment have combined to increase the enthusiasm of Paris.

When Lindbergh and the ambassador prepared to leave, President Doumergue escorted them to the door and patted the newest knight of the Legion of Honor as he said farewell.

At Le Bourget and at the Elysee Palace after President Doumergue kissed him and gave him the cross, Lindbergh was under the lenses of batteries of cameras. Wherever Lindbergh was recognized he was cheered. Men who knew the France of war said the popular acclaim for Lindbergh was comparable to some of the great demonstrations of war.

PARIS FAIRLY IDOLIZES YOUNG HERO AVIATOR

LINDBERGH LAYS A WREATH AT THE TOMB OF THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

CALLS UPON MADAME NUNGESSER, MOTHER OF CAPTAIN CHARLES NUNGESSER

Paris, May 23.—Paris never saw such excitement in peace time as began when Lindbergh came down out of the sky Saturday night to claim his place among the immortals of popular heroism. The hero himself presented a happy combination of youthful ingenuity and audacity which, with every move, brought him nearer to the French heart.

Hardly had he escaped from the crushing throngs at Le Bourget Saturday night and was carried away towards Paris in a special automobile, than he made his first gesture showing he was something more than a foolhardy lad. He requested that the automobile pass beneath the Arch of Triumph. As it reached the arch a woman stepped forward and handed him a bouquet. Despite all his fatigue this youth who had just done the impossible, climbed from the car and laid the wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Then he went on to the American embassy where Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, his family and his staff had prepared rest for him.

"I guess I won't sleep very long," he confided to Herrick as, attired in borrowed pajamas, he laid himself down in a guest suite of the embassy. The ambassador was sitting on the edge of the bed.

But it wasn't long before Herrick could cable to Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh in Detroit, the flier's mother, that:

"Your son is sleeping sweetly." He slept continuously until after 3 P. M. yesterday and then arose to be served with grapefruit, ham and eggs, coffee and toast.

Ambassador Herrick had discovered that one great problem harassed Lindbergh. He had no clothes excepting the aviator's costume.

Embassy attaches and a valet were sent out for clothing, while Lindbergh slept, and when he awakened there was a new suit, which fitted passably well, and complete attire.

In this he appeared in the reception room, was photographed and with Ambassador Herrick stepped to the balcony and greeted the waiting crowds.

Hardly was that over before Lindbergh expressed a desire to call upon Madame Nungesser, mother of Captain Charles Nungesser.

With Ambassador Herrick he drove to the little, sixth floor apartment of the lost ace's mother. Two thousand people blocked the streets around the apartment.

Madame Nungesser seized Lindbergh in her arms and smothered him with kisses.

"I wanted my first visit to be to the mother of that gallant comrade whom I knew in America and whose courage and sang froid and reserve I admired," said Lindbergh through an interpreter.

"Like all Americans, I regret that they failed to complete their great effort but I am hopeful that they soon will be found."

"I'm deeply touched by your gesture," answered Madame Nungesser. "I am his mother and as such keep firm hope they find my son."

She then broke into tears but soon mastered herself.

"But after all I am a French woman and must be brave," she said. "If I could, I would have been at Le Bourget to greet you but I feared my strength would fail because for 10 days I have lived in constant worry without rest."

Lindbergh's first appearance on the embassy balcony was a thrilling affair. He, with the ambassador, stood at salute for several minutes while the crowd, which had been kept quiet by squads of police while the aviator slept, cheered wildly.

Herrick brought out a French flag and he and Lindbergh raised it above the balcony. The crowd roared its

COL. DE PINEDO HOPS OFF FOR AZORE ISLANDS

Trepassey, Newfoundland, May 23.—(UP)—Col. Francesco de Pinedo took off from here at 2:58 a. m. today, eastern daylight time, for the Azores on the last lap of his four-continent flight.

The distance is about 1,800 miles, all over the Atlantic ocean. De Pinedo reduced the weight of his plane 400 pounds just before starting by discarding his wireless set, leaving the plane without means of communication during the flight.

De Pinedo started his long journey in Italy and flew to Africa and South America and then to the United States. At Roosevelt Lake, Arizona, his plane, the Santa Maria, was burned and another craft just like it, also christened Santa Maria, was sent from Italy. In the new plane he has flown over eastern and southern United States and across Canada to Newfoundland.

If de Pinedo completes his return trip to Italy safely, he will be the first aviator who has flown across both the north and south Atlantic oceans.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 23.—(UP)—Col. Francesco de Pinedo passed over here, en route to the Azores, at 3:12 a. m. eastern daylight time.

New York, May 23.—(UP)—The Radio Corporation of America announced today the receipt of a wireless from the S. S. London Importer, in mid-Atlantic, that a white plane had passed over that vessel in latitude 41.42 north and longitude 37.00 west.

It was presumed that this was the seaplane Santa Maria in which Francesco de Pinedo left Trepassey, Newfoundland, this morning to fly 1,800 miles to the Azore islands.

If the plane was de Pinedo's the Italian flier was about two-thirds of the way towards his objective. The wireless said the plane was flying at a speed of about 70 miles an hour.

AUSTRALIA IN WELCOME OF NEXT LINDBERGH FLIGHT

Melbourne, Australia, May 23.—(UP)—Keen and widespread interest was aroused today by the report that Capt. Charles Lindbergh might next fly to Australia. If Lindbergh will come, Australia will be ready. Civil Australian officials today expressed willingness to cooperate for the success of the flight.

demand for an American flag, but none was forthcoming.

It was then that Lindbergh received newspapermen.

In the meantime thousands crowded to the flying field to see the plane. The field, the day after the arrival, was a place of wild disorder. It was littered with papers, hats and most every article one could name. It was estimated that 30,000 francs damage had been done at the field in the demonstration.

The hangar housing the "Spirit of St. Louis" was opened and people were allowed to pass behind rows of armed guards and see the machine.

After visiting Madame Nungesser, Lindbergh received several callers, including Sir Alab Cobham, the famous British flier.

"I'm Cobham," said the aviator. "I flew over from London this morning to shake hands with the most daring pilot I've ever known."

"Thanks," said Lindbergh with characteristic simplicity. "I've heard of you, of course."

Col. Poli Matchetti, commanding the 34th Aviation Squad at Le Bourget, sent word he proposed placing a bronze tablet on the spot where Lindbergh was laid down on being carried to the hangar Saturday night.

War Minister Painleve issued a proclamation warmly praising Lindbergh.

Word was given Lindbergh that arrangements had been made for him to talk to his mother in Detroit on the trans-Atlantic telephone. He was delighted. In a few minutes the call was put through and Lindbergh greeted his mother with a cheery "hello."

Mrs. Lindbergh gave a mother's tribute of congratulation to her son.

By mid-evening he admitted he was tired and retired early to begin today a round of entertainment.

MINNEAPOLIS WITHDRAWS IN FAVOR OF WINNERS

BRAINERD LIONS WIN BEAUTIFUL SILVER LOVING CUP FOR ATTENDANCE RECORD

MESSAGES FROM CHAMBER, ROTARY, MAYOR LITTLE, FAWCETT'S AID TO GAIN MEET

Brainerd Lions were successful on Saturday in gaining the fifth district Lions International convention for Brainerd and Breezy Point, to be held either late in May or the first week in June, 1928, definite dates to be set by the district executive committee acting in conjunction with the local committee.

Brainerd Lions club was present at Fargo, N. D., Friday and Saturday, with practically their entire membership, and won the silver loving cup for having the largest percentage of members present, successfully competing with forty clubs of the district.

The fifth district comprises the state of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, Canada, a territory one-tenth the area of the entire North American continent.

Over 1,000 people were in attendance at the Fargo convention and Brainerd Lions officers expect the attendance at Brainerd next year to exceed 1,500, as Brainerd is a more central location. The attractions of lakes and fishing and other recreations of this section will induce many Lions to bring their families with them.

The Lions club is grateful for assistance given in securing the convention, an important part having been played by the stream of telegrams which deluged the convention floor after Brainerd made its first arguments and had been followed by Minneapolis, a contender for the next convention. These telegrams were from the Rotary club, Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Frank E. Little, and Captain and Mrs. W. H. Fawcett. During the roll call which followed shortly after the telegrams were read, a landslide set in for Brainerd and even Minneapolis, which had made a strong bid for the convention changed its vote to Brainerd and made it unanimous.

A Lions district convention is financed largely by a per capita tax on each member in the district, thus assuring the local club of proper financial backing to handle such an ambitious undertaking.

High lights at the Fargo convention included a parade 16 blocks long with many bands and drum corps playing. Hibbing sent its high school band. The Lions were welcomed by Governor Sorlie and Mayor Dahl and international representatives from Rotary, Kiwanis and Exchange as well as international representatives from the Lions clubs, gave addresses and voiced a welcome.

The banquet Friday night, held in the Masonic Temple, was attended by 900. The headquarters of the convention was at the Elks Temple, the whole building being turned over to the Lions for convention use. Three hundred women, Lionesses, were present and were given special entertainment both days.

W. M. Oates of Aberdeen, S. D., former Deputy District Governor, was elected District Governor for the ensuing year and will open the convention at Brainerd and Breezy Point next year.

A huge golf tournament Saturday afternoon wound up the program, many Brainerd Lions entering the play. The roads, in spite of the rain, were better than expected. Practically all the Brainerd members made the trip by automobile.

The Lions feel proud over having secured the first international convention in the history of Brainerd. With the convention only recently in his grasp, the local club is already mapping out the program for next year and getting things started for the reception of the big convention.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE SHAKES EASTERN CHINA LAST NIGHT

London, May 23.—(UP)—A severe earthquake believed by officials to have occurred in eastern China was registered at 11:40 last night at the Kew observatory here. The quake, about 4,700 miles distant, continued for four hours and was of severity comparable with the quake of March 7, 1926, which caused large loss of life in Japan.

The levee now holding back the Atchafalaya at McCrae is really a protection dyke, hastily constructed when the main levee and a first emergency levee gave way. The permanent levee caved in first, throwing the waters against an emergency barrier.

Then the wall which is now depended upon to save the territory between McCrae and the Mississippi river and south was constructed. The first temporary levee has been washed out.

Flood waters of the Atchafalaya combined with water from the Big Bend break and were creeping toward St. Martinsville in St. Martin parish. The flood will reach ten to fifteen more villages during the day, engineers said.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover was in Baton Rouge today conferring with members of the rehabilitation commission.

New Orleans, May 23.—Coast guard boats today took one hundred persons out of the lowlands between Breau Bridge and Lafayette today, where they were caught in the upper floors of their homes by suddenly rising flood waters.

The relief craft brought the refugees into Lafayette.

Vermilion river and Bayou Techee overflows had spread at an unexpected rate over the lowlands before the Acadian families could move out.

The levee at McCrae on the upper Atchafalaya levee, with an augmented force of 1,200 farmers at work, was still holding. With 2200 convicts, engineers held out hope the levee might hold.

THREE PERSONS SUFFOCATED IN DWELLING FIRE

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 23.—(UP)—Three persons were suffocated today when their frame dwelling caught fire.

The dead: Mrs. Barbara Wahl, 49; her son, Walter J. Wahl, 23, and Robert Hudson, 3, Mrs. Wahl's nephew.

The bodies of Wahl and Mrs. Wahl were found in the same room, and it was believed that Wahl died while trying to rescue his mother. Wahl was a patrolman.

LINDBERGH MADE KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOR

PALACE

By A. L. BRADFORD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Paris, May 23.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, American conqueror of the Atlantic, today became a Knight of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Lindbergh received the decoration and a kiss on either cheek in the private study of President Doumergue of France.

Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, who has had as much thrill out of this thing as the flier himself, accompanied Lindbergh to the Elysee Palace. They immediately entered the study and Doumergue stepped forward, seized his young visitor with both hands and kissed him. Then, the president pinned on Lindbergh's coat the coveted cross.

The ponderous machinery of the French government moved swiftly for Lindbergh. The appropriateness of giving him the Legion Cross was plain to the French from the moment his unlighted plane settled from the heavens Saturday night at 10:21, 33 hours and 30 minutes out from New York.

Arrangements for the audience with President Doumergue were made yesterday. A telephone call to the country home of Foreign Minister Briand obtained that Minister's enthusiastic approval this morning. A few minutes after noon the young man who had thoughtfully provided himself with letters of introduction so that he wouldn't be lonely after arriving here, was a member of the Legion.

Ambassador Herrick told the incident at the Elysee.

"Charles," said the 72-year-old diplomat with as much pride in his voice as though the flier was his grandson, "blushed like a baby. President Doumergue talked to him like a father to a son."

"You have done something wonderful," the president said. "I want you to tell your mother for me that she had a wonderful son, and I want you to take her my best wishes, and kiss her hand for me too."

The French have thought much of Mrs. Lindbergh teaching her chemistry class in Detroit while her boy was achieving what his fellow fliers describe as the greatest single-handed feat in aviation.

Lindbergh's visit to Mme. Nungesser as soon as he had recovered from the exhaustion of his flight, his graceful demeanor during the hours of adulation to which he has been subjected, and the fact that he still seems to feel that those letters of introduction were a necessary part of his equipment have combined to increase the enthusiasm of Paris.

When Lindbergh and the ambassador prepared to leave, President Doumergue escorted them to the door and patted the newest knight of the Legion of Honor as he said farewell.

At Le Bourget and at the Elysee Palace after President Doumergue kissed him and gave him the cross, Lindbergh was under the lenses of batteries of cameras. Wherever Lindbergh was recognized he was cheered. Men who knew the France of war said the popular acclaim for Lindbergh was comparable to some of the great demonstrations of war.

PARIS FAIRLY IDOLIZES YOUNG HERO AVIATOR

LINDBERGH LAYS A WREATH AT THE TOMB OF THE UN-KNOWN SOLDIER

CALLS UPON MADAME NUNGESSER, MOTHER OF CAPTAIN CHARLES NUNGESSER

Paris, May 23.—Paris never saw such excitement in peace time as began when Lindbergh came down out of the sky Saturday night to claim his place among the immortals of popular heroism. The hero himself presented a happy combination of youthful ingenuity and audacity which, with every move, brought him nearer to the French heart.

Hardly had he escaped from the crushing throngs at Le Bourget Saturday night and was carried away towards Paris in a special automobile, than he made his first gesture showing he was something more than a foolhardy lad. He requested that the automobile pass beneath the Arch of Triumph. As it reached the arch a woman stepped forward and handed him a bouquet. Despite all his fatigue this youth who had just done the impossible, climbed from the car and laid the wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Then he went on to the American embassy where Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, his family and his staff had prepared rest for him.

"I guess I won't sleep very long," he confessed to Herrick as, attired in borrowed pajamas, he laid himself down in a guest suite of the embassy. The ambassador was sitting on the edge of the bed.

But it wasn't long before Herrick could cable to Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh in Detroit, the flier's mother, that:

"Your son is sleeping sweetly."

He slept continuously until after 3 P. M. yesterday and then arose to be served with grapefruit, ham and eggs, coffee and toast.

Ambassador Herrick had discovered that one great problem harassed Lindbergh. He had no clothes excepting the aviator's costume.

Embassy attaches and a valet were sent out for clothing, while Lindbergh slept, and when he awakened there was a new suit, which fitted passably well, and complete attire.

In this he appeared in the reception room, was photographed and with Ambassador Herrick stepped to the balcony and greeted the waiting crowds.

Hardly was that over before Lindbergh expressed a desire to call upon Madame Nungesser, mother of Captain Charles Nungesser.

With Ambassador Herrick he drove to the little, sixth floor apartment of the lost ace's mother. Two thousand people blocked the streets around the apartment.

Madame Nungesser seized Lindbergh in her arms and smothered him with kisses.

"I wanted my first visit to be to the mother of that gallant comrade whom I knew in America and whose courage and sang froid and reserve I admired," said Lindbergh through an interpreter.

"Like all Americans, I regret that they failed to complete their great effort but I am hopeful that they soon will be found."

"I'm deeply touched by your gesture," answered Madame Nungesser. "I am his mother and as such keep firm hope they find my son."

She then broke into tears but soon mastered herself.

"But after all I am a French woman and must be brave," she said.

"If I could, I would have been at Le Bourget to greet you but I feared my strength would fail because for 10 days I have lived in constant worry without rest."

Lindbergh's first appearance on the embassy balcony was a thrilling affair. He, with the ambassador, stood at salute for several minutes while the crowd, which had been kept quiet by squads of police while the aviator slept, cheered wildly.

Herrick brought out a French flag and he and Lindbergh raised it above the balcony. The crowd roared its

COL. DE PINEDO HOPS OFF FOR AZORE ISLANDS

Trepassey, Newfoundland, May 23.—(UP)—Col. Francesco de Pinedo took off from here at 2:58 a. m. today, eastern daylight time, for the Azores on the last lap of his four-continent flight.

The distance is about 1,800 miles, all over the Atlantic ocean. De Pinedo reduced the weight of his plane 400 pounds just before starting by discarding his wireless set, leaving the plane without means of communication during the flight.

De Pinedo started his long journey in Italy and flew to Africa and South America and then to the United States. At Roosevelt Lake, Arizona, his plane, the Santa Maria, was burned and another craft just like it, also christened Santa Maria, was sent from Italy. In the new plane he has flown over eastern and southern United States and across Canada to Newfoundland.

If de Pinedo completes his return trip to Italy safely, he will be the first aviator who has flown across both the north and south Atlantic oceans.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 23.—(UP)—Col. Francesco de Pinedo passed over here, en route to the Azores, at 3:12 a. m. eastern daylight time.

New York, May 23.—(UP)—The Radio Corporation of America announced today the receipt of a wireless from the S. S. London Importer, in mid-Atlantic, that a white plane had passed over that vessel in latitude 41.42 north and longitude 37.00 west.

It was presumed that this was the seaplane Santa Maria in which Francesco de Pinedo left Trepassey, Newfoundland, this morning to fly 1,800 miles to the Azore islands.

If the plane was de Pinedo's the Italian flier was about two-thirds of the way towards his objective. The wireless said the plane was flying at a speed of about 70 miles an hour.

AUSTRALIA IN WELCOME OF NEXT LINDBERGH FLIGHT

Melbourne, Australia, May 23.—(UP)—Keen and widespread interest was aroused today by the report that Capt. Charles Lindbergh might next fly to Australia. If Lindbergh will come, Australia will be ready. Civil Australian officials today expressed willingness to cooperate for the success of the flight.

demand for an American flag, but none was forthcoming.

It was then that Lindbergh received newspapermen.

In the meantime thousands crowded to the flying field to see the plane. The field, the day after the arrival, was a place of wild disorder. It was littered with papers, hats and most every article one could name. It was estimated that 30,000 francs (damage) had been done at the field in the demonstration.

The hangar housing the "Spirit of St. Louis" was opened and people were allowed to pass behind rows of armed guards and see the machine.

After visiting Madame Nungesser, Lindbergh received several callers, including Sir Alab Cobham, the famous British flier.

"I'm Cobham," said the aviator "I flew over from London this morning to shake hands with the most daring pilot I've ever known."

"Thanks," said Lindbergh with characteristic simplicity. "I've heard of you, of course."

Col. Poli Matchetti, commanding the 34th Aviation Squad at Le Bourget, sent word he proposed placing a bronze tablet on the spot where Lindbergh was laid down on being carried to the hangar Saturday night.

War Minister Painleve issued a proclamation warmly praising Lindbergh.

Word was given Lindbergh that arrangements had been made for him to talk to his mother in Detroit on the trans-Atlantic telephone. He was delighted. In a few minutes the call was put through and Lindbergh greeted his mother with a cheery "hello."

Mrs. Lindbergh gave a mother's tribute of congratulation to her son. By mid-evening he admitted he was tired and retired early to begin today a round of entertainment.

MINNEAPOLIS WITHDRAWS IN FAVOR OF WINNERS

BRAINERD LIONS WIN BEAUTIFUL SILVER LOVING CUP FOR ATTENDANCE RECORD

MESSAGES FROM CHAMBER, ROTARY, MAYOR LITTLE, FAWCETT'S AID TO GAIN MEET

Brainerd Lions were successful on Saturday in gaining the fifth district Lions International convention for Brainerd and Breezy Point, to be held either late in May or the first week in June, 1928, definite dates to be set by the district executive committee acting in conjunction with the local committee.

Brainerd Lions club was present at Fargo, N. D., Friday and Saturday, with practically their entire membership, and won the silver loving cup for having the largest percentage of members present, successfully competing with forty clubs of the district.

The fifth district comprises the state of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, Canada, a territory one-tenth the area of the entire North American continent.

Over 1,000 people were in attendance at the Fargo convention and Brainerd Lions officers expect the attendance at Brainerd next year to exceed 1,500, as Brainerd is a more central location. The attractions of lakes and fishing and other recreations of this section will induce many Lions to bring their families with them.

The Lions club is grateful for assistance given in securing the convention, an important part having been played by the stream of telegrams which deluged the convention floor after Brainerd made its first arguments and had been followed by Minneapolis, a contender for the next convention. These telegrams were from the Rotary club, Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Frank E. Little, and Captain and Mrs. W. H. Fawcett. During the roll call which followed shortly after the telegrams were read, a landslide set in for Brainerd and even Minneapolis, which had made a strong bid for the convention changed its vote to Brainerd and made it unanimous.

A Lions district convention is financed largely by a per capita tax on each member in the district, thus assuring the local club of proper financial backing to handle such an ambitious undertaking.

High lights at the Fargo convention included a parade 16 blocks long with many bands and drum corps playing. Hibbing sent its high school band. The Lions were welcomed by Governor Sorlie and Mayor Dahl and international representatives from Rotary, Kiwanis and Exchange as well as international representatives from the Lions clubs, gave addresses and voiced a welcome.

The banquet Friday night, held in the Masonic Temple, was attended by 900. The headquarters of the convention was at the Elks Temple, the whole building being turned over to the Lions for convention use. Three hundred women, Lionesses, were present and were given special entertainment both days.

W. M. Oates of Aberdeen, S. D., former Deputy District Governor, was elected District Governor for the ensuing year and will open the convention at Brainerd and Breezy Point next year.

A huge golf tournament Saturday afternoon wound up the program, many Brainerd Lions entering the play. The roads, in spite of the rain, were better than expected. Practically all the Brainerd members made the trip by automobile.

The Lions feel proud over having secured the first international convention in the history of Brainerd. With the convention only recently in its grasp, the local club is already mapping out the program for next year and getting things started for the reception of the big convention.

SEVERE QUAKE SHAKES EASTERN CHINA LAST NIGHT

London, May 23.—(UP)—A severe earthquake believed by officials to have occurred in eastern China was registered at 11:40 last night at the Kew observatory here. The quake, about 4,700 miles distant, continued for four hours and was of severity comparable with the quake of March 7, 1926, which caused large loss of life in Japan.

HE MADE IT

WHEN Lindbergh set out on his epochal flight, all the world wondered if he would be able to negotiate this first nonstop air voyage from New York to Paris. The intense daring and courage of the youthful flier gripped all people. Every country in the line of his flight scanned the skies for trace of the aviator.

The reception accorded him when his plane alighted was a spontaneous one of rejoicing. As one large paper recorded the scene, the populace, and that meant everybody, made a rush for the plane, carried the aviator on shoulders and brushed aside the silk-hatted, official reception committee.

Not since the signing of the Armistice has there been such excitement throughout the United States. Little Falls as the expression is, "went crazy." It was ten times as intense as any Bush day in Brainerd. And talk about publicity! Little Falls had its name in bold print on the map of the world with New York and London and Paris showing the route taken by Lindbergh.

The Brainerd Daily Dispatch published a full-page Lindbergh story complete from many angles and heralded the successful finish of his flight in Saturday's paper, hours ahead of any city paper reaching Brainerd. United Press service did not fail in this great news story.

All day the Dispatch office was crowded with subscribers anxious for a word from the intrepid navigator. The printer-telegraph story was grabbed before it had seen the linotype. A. M. Opsahl, almost a life-long friend of the Lindberghs, rushed his cablegram congratulations to Paris.

The wholehearted enthusiasm with which the French people were ready and anxious to greet Lindbergh was exemplified in an editorial in "La Liberte", of Paris, as quoted from the Minneapolis Tribune:

"Tonight, if God permits, the American aviator, Lindbergh, will land on the soil of France. Paris, an ever fervent admirer of courage, Paris, who has not forgotten her emotion of joy when in 1917 she saw the first detachments of the American Expeditionary Force march through her streets, will unite tonight in a single thought of fervent piety the names of Lindbergh, Nungesser and Coli. If Lindbergh lands tonight at the Le Bourget all Paris will be en fete to welcome him.

"For, if they could speak to us, this would be the last prayer of Nungesser and Coli themselves, who themselves awaited feverishly the coming of their American comrades so they might carry them in triumph. If Lindbergh in his turn disappears in the ocean immensity, we shall think of his mother, and shall unite in a single thought the mothers of Lindbergh and Nungesser and the mother of Coli, who in Marseilles weeps between her two children clad in mourning. Tomorrow morning (Sunday) it will be exactly two weeks since the 'White Bird' spread its wings, never to return."

COMING OUT OF THE MUD

THE Industrial News Bureau, the Manufacturer, remarks that one of the chief benefits the farmer derives from really good roads is that of being able to move his farm products to market over them, quickly, cheaply and without inconvenience. The farmer's crops are his stock in trade. If he can market them without delay when the price is up, he is the gainer; if, because of bad roads, he is unable to get his products to market until after the price has declined, he loses.

"In the old days when roads were good only in good weather, the farmer could do little satisfactory marketing. He was forced to take a chance on getting his products to the buyer on a rising market.

"One decided advantage in good roads is that they encourage the use of motor vehicles by the farmer, effecting a saving in time and worry in moving his crops, and in getting his family to church and children to school.

"Thousands of miles of poor roads which act as feeders for main highways are being made practical for modern traffic at a minimum of expense, by protecting the old base with a waterproof wearing surface. Thus farm land is made available for us, which would otherwise be isolated due to distance from schools and markets and prohibitive cost of building standard types of state highway pavements.

"The modern tractor and road machinery plus the waterproofing qualities of asphalt are enabling hundreds of communities to come out of the mud.

"Good roads are probably next in importance to newspapers in unifying our people."

OUR LADY GAME WARDEN

CROW WING county has the only lady game warden in the state, Mrs. Florence Stukel, and she is anxious to return to her sphere of duty after a winter spent in the capitol offices of the State Game and Fish Commission.

Mrs. Stukel has a small cabin near Outing where she chops her own wood, cooks her meals, makes trips to buy her supplies and then keeps supervision of game and fish resources in the large area at the north end of the county.

She is fearless in the discharge of her official duties, has arrested many men and women for game law violations and has generally secured convictions. Magazines have carried stories of her work.

"I am deeply interested in seeing that our game laws are enforced," she said in an interview. "Our game and fish resources are disappearing too fast with civilization's pressure—the laws we have to aid in preservation I consider the most just regulations in principle that are on the statute books."

SHERBURNE county is getting down to business to chase highway law offenders and bandits. The county board has asked the district court to authorize payment of a salary of $300 a month to a traffic officer, provided he obtain a car that will travel at least 80 miles an hour. The sheriff has been authorized to buy two sawed off shotguns of the latest type to be used in chasing criminals.

A BEE'S stinger is only one-thirty-second of an inch in length, but it makes a strong impression when properly applied, says a bulletin of the Kansas State Agricultural College. Any one ever stung by a bee will recognize the truth of this scientific observation.

The London-New York Line Is Busy!

Transatlantic telephone service is quite simple as far as the switchboard in the London trunk exchange, shown in the picture, is concerned. The operator on the left is through to New York while the operator on the right is connecting the London subscriber.

Telephone Operators Cut Clothing Cost

Telephone operators at Cherokee, Iowa, have lowered the high cost of dressing to an appreciable extent by making gingham uniforms to wear while at work. Sewing was done during their regular rest periods during the day and was supervised by the office matron. Girls in other telephone exchanges are considering making similar uniforms to replace the more expensive dresses usually worn.

"DEAR KEN: I miss you unbearably. Aunt Julia is as obstinate as ever and bound I shall marry Roger Drake, who showed up here yesterday. I shan't, of course. There's an aviator here that reminds me of you, and I'm taking a flight with him Wednesday. Wish it were you, old dear."

"PAT."

Lieut. Kenneth Barrows returned the note to its pale blue envelope and sighed deeply. Patricia, adorably satisfying when present was devilishly unsatisfying when absent. So casual about Roger, so tantalizing about the aviator fellow. So—so—hang it all, if only he could once capture her he could keep her, but uncaught he would never feel sure of her.

Of course that mercenary old female relative had a keen eye for the Drake half-millions, and no eye at all for Ken.

He withdrew the missive and re-read it, searching for those messages which are popularly supposed to be hidden between the lines. Poor sleuth that he was, he unearthed nothing. Yet, as he re-folded it, an idea from somewhere smote him. Patty was too ingenious to have originated it, but, if he knew her, she would fall for it. At any rate, it was worth a gamble.

The following day Miss Patricia Allen sat in her bedroom and pondered deeply. "I wonder," she mused, "if I should telegraph Ken to fly up here and kidnap me, if he would do it. We could fly to New York and—" her eyes began to sparkle. She jumped up, jaunted on her yellow sports hat, and slipped down to send her impulsive message. You see, Patty didn't know that at that very time Ken was working along a line of his own.

Wednesday afternoon two planes might have been discovered on the aviation field in the rear of the Lakeview Inn, but one was more or less concealed behind some trees and flowering shrubs, having been wheeled there for that purpose.

"You see, old boy," Ken explained to the lad who was earning a fair amount by taking the inn's guests for short flights, "it's my one chance to get my girl away from the clutches of a female dragon. Don't I remember you in the Argonne region? Thought so. Now you let me take your place, at the last moment when the girl is seated. She won't recognize this plane and you can use mine until my return. Same engine and controls, luckily. Thanks!"

It was a perfect afternoon for a flight, with blue skies and starlingly or two as, according to preconceived plan, he stepped forth at the last moment and climbed into the plane beside its solitary passenger, toward whom he did not dare look. He was sure of his identity remaining undisclosed until he was ready to reveal it. He was wondering just what Aunt Julia would say when the plane failed to return with her niece and she was handed the note he had left for her with the other flyer.

For some moments he was occupied in skillful manipulation of the plane, but once it had reached the desired altitude and was circling evenly, he spoke as quietly as he could for the roar of the engines. "Don't be frightened, Patty. It's Ken. We'll be married in Warrensville. I had to get you away from that old she-dragon somehow."

His companion turned to him and half lifted the visor of her helmet. "Meaning—me?"

Ken's passenger was Aunt Julia.

Spectators who had been watching the plane saw it dip suddenly and twirl dizzily downward. Ken told Patty afterward that he thought for a moment that a crash to earth would be the best way out of it. Then it righted suddenly, but to the surprise of the other aviator, turned back toward the Inn. And presently it glided gracefully down.

Aunt Julia had said nothing further and climbed out without comment. As she started across the field with her head held high, a slim figure detached itself from the crowd and ran over. "Wasn't it wonderful, Auntie? Like nothing you ever experienced before?"

Aunt Julia paused and those who caught her words are still puzzling over them.

"Nothing, Patricia. No one ever—not even your sainted uncle at his worst—ever called me to my face an old she-dragon before!"

"Why—what—?" Patty seemed stunned. Had the high altitude affected her mind?

"Take him if you want him," went on Aunt Julia. "What do you suppose he'll be calling you some day?"

Kenneth stepped forward. "Patty," he said in a low voice, "this is too public a place for explanations. I don't know how this mix-up happened—"

"But—how did you get here so soon. I only just telegraphed a few minutes ago. I got Aunt Julia to take my place in the plane to get her out of the way!" Patty's heart was beating wildly although her expression was most puzzled.

"I say, Pat," he said desperately. "My plane is here. I'll get it and we'll take a spin."

And so, far from the curious throng, in the perfect isolation of space, they explained to each other. And they didn't return to the Inn.

Gem of Poetic Fancy

Is "America's Making"

This interpretation of the United States, titled "America's Making," was written some years ago by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of the Temple, Cleveland. It has been widely copied and quoted.

"God built him a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold; He studied it with sweet flowing fountains and traced it with long winding streams;

"He carpeted it with soft rolling prairies and columned it with thundering mountains; He graced it with deep-shadowed forests and filled them with song.

"Then he called unto a thousand peoples and summoned the bravest among them,

"They came from the ends of the earth, each bearing a gift and a hope. The glow of adventure was in their eyes, and in their hearts the glory of hope,

"And out of the bounty of earth and the labor of men; "Out of the longing of hearts and the prayer of souls;

"Out of the memory of ages and the hopes of the world, "God fashioned a nation in love, blessed it with purpose sublime, and called it America."

French-Fried Potatoes

Like all others who take delight in a platter of crisp, hot French fried potatoes, I always supposed this particular way of preparing them was originated by some illustrious French chef in the distant long ago, until along came one of those fellows who are always dishing up history and finding things to shatter our pet illusions.

According to his version, the French fried potato originated not in France but in New York. One day, so the story goes, Jay Gould dropped into Delmonico's restaurant in that city and said: "I want potatoes quartered and fried in deep fat." The desire to imitate the doings of a Gould probably caused the use of potatoes fried in this way to assume the proportions of a fad, although, unlike many other fads, this one survived. For years these were known simply as quartered potatoes. Then Delmonico took to slicing them thinner and called them by the name under which they are now known throughout the country.

Whatever may be said of Jay Gould as a financier and railroad builder, all lovers of French fried potatoes are under lasting obligations to this forceful American.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HE MADE IT

WHEN Lindbergh set out on his epochal flight, all the world wondered if he would be able to negotiate this first nonstop air voyage from New York to Paris. The intense daring and courage of the youthful flier gripped all people. Every country in the line of his flight scanned the skies for trace of the aviator.

The reception accorded him when his plane alighted was a spontaneous one of rejoicing. As one large paper recorded the scene, the populace, and that meant everybody, made a rush for the plane, carried the aviator on shoulders and brushed aside the silk-hatted, official reception committee.

Not since the signing of the Armistice has there been such excitement throughout the United States. Little Falls as the expression is, "went crazy." It was ten times as intense as any Bush day in Brainerd. And talk about publicity! Little Falls had its name in bold print on the map of the world with New York and London and Paris showing the route taken by Lindbergh.

The Brainerd Daily Dispatch published a full-page Lindbergh story complete from many angles and heralded the successful finish of his flight in Saturday's paper, hours ahead of any city paper reaching Brainerd. United Press service did not fail in this great news story.

All day the Dispatch office was crowded with subscribers anxious for a word from the intrepid navigator. The printer-telegraph story was grabbed before it had seen the linotype. A. M. Opsahl, almost a life-long friend of the Lindberghs, rushed his cablegram congratulations to Paris.

The wholehearted enthusiasm with which the French people were ready and anxious to greet Lindbergh was exemplified in an editorial in "La Liberte", of Paris, as quoted from the Minneapolis Tribune:

"Tonight, if God permits, the American aviator, Lindbergh, will land on the soil of France. Paris, an ever fervent admirer of courage, Paris, who has not forgotten her emotion of joy when in 1917 she saw the first detachments of the American Expeditionary Force march through her streets, will unite tonight in a single thought of fervent piety the names of Lindbergh, Nungesser and Coli. If Lindbergh lands tonight at the Le Bourget all Paris will be en fete to welcome him.

"For, if they could speak to us, this would be the last prayer of Nungesser and Coli themselves, who themselves awaited feverishly the coming of their American comrades so they might carry them in triumph. If Lindbergh in his turn disappears in the ocean immensity, we shall think of his mother, and shall unite in a single thought the mothers of Lindbergh and Nungesser and the mother of Coli, who in Marseilles weeps between her two children clad in mourning. Tomorrow morning (Sunday) it will be exactly two weeks since the 'White Bird' spread its wings, never to return."

COMING OUT OF THE MUD

THE Industrial News Bureau, the Manufacturer, remarks that one of the chief benefits the farmer derives from really good roads is that of being able to move his farm products to market over them, quickly, cheaply and without inconvenience. The farmer's crops are his stock in trade. If he can market them without delay when the price is up, he is the gainer; if, because of bad roads, he is unable to get his products to market until after the price has declined, he loses.

"In the old days when roads were good only in good weather, the farmer could do little satisfactory marketing. He was forced to take a chance on getting his products to the buyer on a rising market.

"One decided advantage in good roads is that they encourage the use of motor vehicles by the farmer, effecting a saving in time and worry in moving his crops, and in getting his family to church and children to school.

"Thousands of miles of poor roads which act as feeders for main highways are being made practical for modern traffic at a minimum of expense, by protecting the old base with a waterproof wearing surface. Thus farm land is made available for us, which would otherwise be isolated due to distance from schools and markets and prohibitive cost of building standard types of state highway pavements.

"The modern tractor and road machinery plus the waterproofing qualities of asphalt are enabling hundreds of communities to come out of the mud.

"Good roads are probably next in importance to newspapers in unifying our people."

OUR LADY GAME WARDEN

CROW WING county has the only lady game warden in the state, Mrs. Florence Stukel, and she is anxious to return to her sphere of duty after a winter spent in the capitol offices of the State Game and Fish Commission.

Mrs. Stukel has a small cabin near Outing where she chops her own wood, cooks her meals, makes trips to buy her supplies and then keeps supervision of game and fish resources in the large area at the north end of the county.

She is fearless in the discharge of her official duties, has arrested many men and women for game law violations and has generally secured convictions. Magazines have carried stories of her work.

"I am deeply interested in seeing that our game laws are enforced," she said in an interview. "Our game and fish resources are disappearing too fast with civilization's pressure—the laws we have to aid in preservation I consider the most just regulations in principle that are on the statute books."

SHERBURNE county is getting down to business to chase highway law offenders and bandits. The county board has asked the district court to authorize payment of a salary of $300 a month to a traffic officer, provided he obtain a car that will travel at least 80 miles an hour. The sheriff has been authorized to buy two sawed off shotguns of the latest type to be used in chasing criminals.

A BEE's stinger is only one-thirty-second of an inch in length, but it makes a strong impression when properly applied, says a bulletin of the Kansas State Agricultural College. Any one ever stung by a bee will recognize the truth of this scientific observation.

The London-New York Line Is Busy!

Transatlantic telephone service is quite simple as far as the switchboard in the London trunk exchange, shown in the picture, is concerned. The operator on the left is through to New York while the operator on the right is connecting the London subscriber.

Telephone Operators Cut Clothing Cost

Telephone operators at Cherokee, Iowa, have lowered the high cost of dressing to an appreciable extent by making gingham uniforms to wear while at work. Sewing was done during their regular rest periods during the day and was supervised by the office matron. Girls in other telephone exchanges are considering making similar uniforms to replace the more expensive dresses usually worn.

CARRIES TEAM IN 9 TO 4 WIN OVER GIANTS

PITTSBURGH PITCHER HELPS HIS GAME WITH TWO

SECOND VICTORY RECORDED BY HIM IN PIRATE
SERIES

(By United Press)

Yesterday's hero — Vic Aldridge, Pirate pitcher, carried his team to a 9 to 4 victory over the New York Giants and first place in the National League. Aldridge allowed only one run until the ninth when he let down with the assurance of an eight-run lead and allowed the Giants to score three. The Pittsburgh pitcher helped his game with two hits, one of them a double. It was his second victory in the Pirate series.

Babe Ruth hit his tenth home run of the season in the sixth inning of the Yankee's game with Cleveland. The resulting runs were not needed, however, to beat the Indians. The score was: New York, 7; Cleveland, 2.

Rally in the ninth which netted three runs saved the Detroit Tigers a defeat. With the score tied, 6 to 6, the game was called after the Tiger batting spree to enable the Washington team to catch a train.

The line-score of the Brooklyn Robins Sunday resembled a club's golf card. Three Philadelphia pitchers yielded 20 runs to Brooklyn in eight innings. The losers scored four.

Overcoming a one-run lead in the ninth, the St. Louis Browns first tied the score and then won their game with Boston, 6 to 5.

Chicago Cubs' tenure in first place in the National League was short-lived due to the crushing attack of the Cincinnati Reds. The score was Cincinnati 8, Chicago 4.

Ehmke held the Chicago White Sox to five hits and one run, allowing the Athletics to win, 6 to 1. Red Faber, Sox veteran pitcher, proved ineffective.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Toledo continued to pull away at the head of the American Association list by defeating Indianapolis, 5 to 2, here yesterday. Wisner held the Indians to five scattered hits.

St. Paul—Despite a four run rally in the final innings, St. Paul dropped a wild contest to Milwaukee, 9 to 8. Milwaukee gained an edge by scoring four runs in each of the third and fourth frames.

Minneapolis—Zinn, Blue pitcher, held down the Miller hits while his team mates were hammering four Minneapolis pitchers and Kansas City won, 8 to 1.

Columbus, O. — Leibold cracked out a single in the ninth to give Columbus a win over Louisville, 10 to 9. The score was tied and the bases full when Leibold singled.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Mickey O'Neill, Brooklyn catcher, was sold to the Washington Americans.

The Yankees are better equipped in reserve strength in the infield and outfield than last year.

The Yankees have completed arrangements to train in St. Petersburg again next season.

The Atlanta club of the Southern league has obtained outfielder Frank Welch from the Philadelphia Athletics on option.

The Washington American league baseball club has released B. F. Neis, outfielder, to the Cleveland American league club.

Waco of the Texas league has turned outfielder Kelly and pitcher Walker over to the Kinston club of the Virginia league.

Earle Sande doesn't make one-fourth as much money as Babe Ruth in a year. But there isn't one-fourth as much of him.

The Beaumont club of the Texas league has released Hookie Irwin and Buster Scroggins, both youthful outfielders, to Alexandria of the Cotton States league.

Victory Hopps of Forest City, Pa., a catcher, and Joseph Murphy of Albany, N. Y., an infielder, were signed for a trial with the Williamsport N. Y. P. league club.

Tex Covington, veteran first baseman, who was out of the game last season, has been obtained by the Fort Smith club of the Western association from Little Rock.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 23.—Western teams have won the intercollegiate track and field championship five times in the last six years and they are favored to repeat in the fifty-first edition of the classic which will be held Friday and Saturday at University of Pennsylvania stadium, Philadelphia.

California won the title in 1921, 1922 and 1923. Yale temporarily ended the western domination in 1924 but Southern California took the title to the coast again in 1925 and 1926.

Stanford, third member of the Pacific "Big Three," and Southern California are favorites this year.

Thirty-four colleges have entered teams and most of them will compete in at least a few events, but there isn't an outstanding team in the east to compare with the two strong California delegations.

Southern California has a most formidable array in Charley Borah, House and Smith, sprinters; Barnes and Williams, pole vaulters; Hill, a broad jumper; Kaer and Reynolds, hurdlers; Coggeshall, a high jumper; Aleski, a weight man, and Lovejoy, a middle distance runner.

Stanford has beaten California and Southern California in dual meets and cleaned up practically everything on the coast.

Stanford has Spencer, a great quarter miler; Nichols and West, fine hurdlers; Hoffman, one of the most capable weight men on the college field, and other star field men.

Johnny Gibson, Fordham hurdler; Sabin Carr, Yale pole vaulter, and Monty Wells, Dartmouth hurdler, are a few of the outstanding eastern athletes but there is no assurance that Wells will be as good outside as he was during the indoor season or that Carr can beat Borah.

Still after what has happened so far in the young season, the possibility of a surprising upset is strong. Yale, considered to have an "unbeatable crew, lost the first varsity rowing race in five years to a Princeton crew that was hardly figured at all.

The surprising victory of Jack Sharkey over his rival Boston heavyweight, Jim Maloney, was another instance of exaggerated reputation. The estimate of most of the wise money was wrong.

To hear some of the chatter now all Sharkey has to do to win the heavyweight championship is to fight Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. That may prove to be another instance of inflated reputation, although Sharkey did look like a champion in winning from Maloney.

While the Detroit Tigers were the second best hitting team in the American league last season, ranking only one point behind Washington, they were one of the worst fielding clubs. The official fielding records for the year show Detroit in sixth place with a percentage of .968, only two points better than the erring Yankees.

In only one position did Detroit place a player as leader. Johnny Bassler, catcher, went through the season without an error. He had one passed ball in the 63 games in which he worked. Myatt of Cleveland and Fox of the Athletics also had perfect records, but appeared in only a few games.

In the pitching records Holloway, Johns and Stoner fielded flawlessly, as did 13 other American league pitchers.

Fifth place was the best Detroit infielders could show in their records as compared with other players of the league. Johnny Neun ranked fifth among league first basemen, with Lou Blue, the regular Tiger first baseman, at the bottom of the list, excepting for Bob Knobe of Cleveland, who played in only 11 games.

At second base Gehring ranked sixth, making 16 errors. Both Gehring and Eddie Collins of the White Sox finished with fielding percentages of .973.

Tavener was third among regular shortstops, but was fifth if the figures of the veteran Peckinpaugh and Scott are considered. These two were in 46 and 38 games, respectively.

Warner ranked sixth among third basemen, being topped by Kamm, Hummel, Lutzke, McManus and Haney.

The best fielding Tiger in the outer gardens was Harry Hellmann, who made 7 errors and ranked number 18 from the top. Both Manush and Fothergill were in the lower section of the list.

Sport Notes

Horsewomen in Paris are forming a polo federation.

Ice hockey is the fastest and one of the most popular of sport spectacles.

Harvard and Yale rowing crews have met each other for the last 70 years.

Kansas City lays claim to having more basket ball teams than any other city of similar size.

Edvin Wide, the sensational runner of Sweden, drinks two or three cups of coffee at a single meal.

Football is said to be responsible for fewer fatalities every year. Except, of course, among raccoons.

One trouble about these slow clubs being instituted in colleges is that the football players might join 'em.

Clarence Turner, for many years one of America's best jockeys, is giving up the saddle to become a trainer.

Mr. Hoppe, oldest of the contenders in the recent tournament, lost his 182 balkline billiard championship but successfully defended his title of Boy Wonder.

The United States hasn't won a marathon in the Olympic games since 1903, when little Johnny Hayes, now dead, fought his way to victory over Dorando Pietrangeli in London.

Why are there so many charming women today

Never before have there been so many charming women.

Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink-and-white complexion, luxurious, well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women of today.

Why?

At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the greatest users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.

Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk, how to entertain.

One reason why so many women are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why
so many women are so charming
Read advertising regularly

Why are there so many charming women today

Never before have there been so many charming women.

Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink-and-white complexion, luxurious, well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women of today.

Why?

At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the greatest users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.

Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk, how to entertain.

One reason why so many women are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why
so many women are so charming
Read advertising regularly

LINDBERGH MADE KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOR

French and American and other reporters constantly were after the flier.

Lindbergh's tall, somewhat lanky figure has been so minutely described in the French press that all who saw him today knew who he was. Of course Ambassador Herrick is well known, and had there been any doubt as to the identity of his companion on the automobile ride to the Elysee Palace, the ambassador's smile would have made identification certain.

"This makes me young again," the ambassador exclaimed.

A French reporter inquired whether Lindbergh had learned any French during the day and a half he has been here.

"Not yet," replied the flier, "but I will have to learn some soon."

Lindbergh arose early and motored to Le Bourget accompanied by the military and naval attaches of the American embassy and escorted by officials of the Surete Generale. Arriving at the airfield at 11 A. M., Lindbergh hurried to the hangar where his Ryan monoplane, Spirit of St. Louis, had been sheltered after the dramatic landing at 5:21 P. M. eastern daylight time, Saturday, 33 hours and 30 minutes out of New York.

The American's long strides outdistanced the photographers who shot him as he hurried toward his plane. After a quick inspection, Lindbergh was satisfied that his plane was in good shape despite the exuberant man-handling of the welcoming crowd Saturday.

"I found the plane in better shape than I had expected," Lindbergh told the United Press. "I was afraid the crowd would tear it to pieces."

"Did you see the crowd? It was terrible, wasn't it? They took some souvenirs, but I shall have the ship fixed here and the work will start today and I hope to be able to fly around Paris a bit."

"I don't know whether I shall take the plane back to America. That will be decided in a few days. I peeped at the motor and it looked perfectly good to me. I don't think it was a bit damaged by the flight and I think I could fly back again."

Within a day, Lindbergh has become the most popular hero in Paris. From early morning until late at night, crowds have surrounded the American embassy where Lindbergh is the guest of Ambassador Herrick. Most of the watchers were school girls and debutantes who made scrapbook collections of newspaper accounts of Lindbergh's arrival and then brought the books to the embassy hoping that they could get the flier's autograph.

Lindbergh likes Paris and has developed a weakness for French pastry. Incomprehensible as it may be to the French, Lindbergh has refused champagne and even cigarettes, explaining that he never smokes.

'I THINK I COULD FLY BACK AGAIN,' SAYS LINDBERGH

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Paris, May 23.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, of Missouri and the whole United States, visited his New York-to-Paris plane today, arrived later at the Elysee palace where he became a knight of the Legion of Honor and told the United Press that his plane looked good.

"I think I could fly back again," he said.

But, Lindbergh won't fly back to America. He will return on a steamer, just what steamer has not been decided. The people of Cherbourg have invited the flier to honor them by sailing for home from their port.

INJURY

San Antonio, Texas, May 23.—(UP)—The army dirigible TC-10-243 was jerked in two parts and destroyed today as it was taking the air at Brooks Field on a flight to Scott Field, Ill.

Major A. J. Strauss, commander, and his crew of five men, escaped without injury, although they fell under the great bag.

The giant ship had just been maneuvered out of its hangar and the motors started. It got under way with the mooring cable attached to a 400-foot track on the ground from the end of which it was supposed to slip.

When about half the length of the track had been run the lower end of the cable caught in a rail joint. There was a terrific jerk as the fast moving dirigible was jerked to a halt.

The steering apparatus came loose from the bag and crashed to the ground. Then the gas bag buckled and plunged, catching the crew beneath it in the gondola.

C. C. PYLE ANXIOUS TO PILOT LINDBERGH TO HALF MILLION

Chicago, May 23.—(UP)—Capt. Charles Lindbergh's exploit of successfully flying from New York to Paris should be worth at least a half million dollars to the flyer "if properly handled," Charles C. Pyle told the United Press today.

The man who handles the business affairs of Harold "Red" Grange, and who handled the affairs of Suzanne Lenglen when she turned her tennis prowess into dollars, said he had made no overtures to Lindbergh, but "I'd be mighty glad to handle a lad of his calibre," he said.

"Well handled he should make at least $500,000 for himself. If his sponsors want me to handle his affairs, I'd be only too glad to talk business with them."

Los Angeles, Cal., May 23.—Life imprisonment and not the gallows will be asked for Paul Kelly, screen juvenile, on trial for the murder of Ray Raymond, musical comedy star, according to Deputy District Attorney Forrest Murray.

Murray indicated the nature of the evidence did not substantiate the theory that the alleged murder was premeditated.

The grey-haired W. I. Gilbert, master of sarcasm and chief of the defense counsel, will continue his final plea for Kelly's acquittal when court convenes at 2 P. M. today after the week-end adjournment.

In his cross examination of professional men who took the witness stand, he attempted to show that the stage actor died of natural causes and not from the effects of a beating at the hands of Kelly, as the state charges.

He is expected to cling tenaciously to the theory that there was a "reasonable doubt" as to the cause of Raymond's death and to insist that Kelly be freed on these grounds.

Meanwhile, in another court room another sensational murder trial is ending. Five persons, including the widow of "Two-gun" Tom Kerrick, screen cowboy, fatally shot during a drinking party in his home, are expected to know their fate before another day has elapsed.

All are on trial for Kerrick's murder.

200 TURNED AWAY AT UNION SERVICE

Park Theatre Packed to Capacity as High School Baccalaureate Was Conducted

119 STUDENTS IN CLASS

Rev. Robert J. Long Delivered Inspiring Charge to Graduating Students

More than 200 people were turned away from the Park theatre last evening where the high school baccalaureate services were conducted, the theatre being jammed to the doors.

The entire center section of the theatre was reserved for the 119 students of the Brainerd high school, the largest graduating class in the history of the school. The high school orchestra was in attendance in the theatre music pit and the school chorus gave two very good song selections. Misses Dorothy Hass and Violet Stanley rendered in a pleasing manner, "Closer Still With Thee."

W. C. Cobb, superintendent of schools as chairman introduced the speakers of the evening. Rev. Morris L. Evers gave the invocation, Rev. N. P. Olmsted the scripture reading and Rev. A. G. Patterson, the benediction.

Rev. Robert J. Long, baccalaureate speaker, delivered an inspiring charge to the students and adults.

The text for the sermon was taken from the scripture lesson for the evening, part of the twenty third verse of the twenty fifth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew: "Enter thou into the joy of Thy Lord."

The place and value of life in all of its phases was pointed out and to all life was given the supreme crown of the sacredness of human life. The hopes of all the world, the hope of each individual life is only to be found in the acceptance and development of the lives of those who grow into manhood and womanhood with a sense of the opportunities and responsibilities that each one has. A review of the parable of the talents was then given with the statement that the innumerable hosts of men and women, young men and young women, could be placed in the three groups that are represented by the servants who received the three gifts of talents at their masters hand as the master started upon his journey. The one who received five talents is represented by those few, indeed very few individuals that are to be found in the world as exceptionally gifted. To the one who received one talent was given the representation of those that are unfortunate in life, those that are handicapped and because of those very facts cannot and do not rise above the pitiable. But to the one who received the two talents was given the representation of the "Average Life." To that class belongs the vast majority of the human race—those that are neither exceptionally gifted or particularly unfortunate, but who because of the fact that they have the average gifts and talents in life they show what it is possible to do and therefore make it possible for all their average friends and neighbors to see the average life make good.

This fact is seen in the outstanding event of the hour and day when through the humble and inconspicuous birth and youth of the hero of today, although he was but the average child in our neighboring town, is proclaimed by all the known world as the hero of the world in his conquest of his nonstop flight across the vast expanse of ocean and land.

While the young men and young women are not demanding to be considered exceptionally gifted or willing to be called particularly unfortunate they do wish to be considered in the class, where we practically all place ourselves as having the average gifts and talents in and for life. So the greatest contribution that can be made today is to have the average person in the world show that there is a great place and a great chance in this great world in which we are a part. This can only be shown by holding to the highest possible ideals, manifesting the highest possible plane of living for the average life and consistently and persistently holding to all, through all the developments of life and particularly in the young manhood and young womanhood of today.

The revolt of modern youth was challenged as being a thing untrue but rather as an illustration in all of its so called demonstrations as youth following the adults of today. This is shown by a statement recently found in one of the daily papers when the warden of Stillwater said, "It often seems to me that juvenile delinquency is nothing more or less than a reflection on present day parents." A plea was made for adults to hold before the young people and youth of today the ideals we hope and pray may be instilled and developed in them.

The example of the life and work of Jesus Christ as the Saviour of the world was presented as the pattern and example for steadfastness in life, the consecration of self to ones mission in the world through the use of the talents, the abilities that are given to the individual life and thus developing the beauty and glory of life.

CAMP CLEARWATER OPENING IN 5 WEEKS

Scouts Requested to Register Immediately as Accommodations Are Limited

CAMP IN FINE SHAPE

Fall Diamond Plowed and Dragged, Reroof Cabins And One New One Built

Only five weeks remain until the opening of Camp Clearwater for boy scouts on Clearwater Lake and in view of the limited number of registration Clearwater can accommodate, all scouts desiring to take advantage of the camp this year are requested to enter their names to B. Perry Newton, scout executive for Crow Wing Area Council, immediately.

Although there are over 400 boy scouts in the area and the majority desirous of attending summer camp, the camp can accommodate only 144 scouts. Already many have registered for camp.

Many improvements are noted this season at the camp. The cabins are being reroofed, the baseball diamond plowed, dragged, and stumps and stones cleared away. The wood supply is on hand and the ice is packed away for immediate use. One new cabin has been constructed and the entire camp is being put in shape for the opening of the season. The sea scout boat will be launched shortly.

WILL REBUILD BRIDGE

County Commissioners Take Action on Visit to Little Pine River Bridge

Rebuilding of a wooden structural bridge over Little Pine river at the estimated cost of $1400 was decided by the county commissioners Saturday on an inspection tour in Mission township.

The work which will be done on the day labor plan under the supervision of County Highway Engineer Walter M. Murphy will be started immediately.

Brainerd, May 23, 1927.

Dear friends:

I'll take off my hat to the boss when it comes to diamonds.

He knows more about diamonds than anybody I ever talked to. Mr. Lundborg, you know, was located in Pittsburgh for 25 years. He says there are more diamonds worn in that city than in any other city in the world, population considered. Maybe it's because the inhabitants need something to help light their way along the streets.

Anyway, as I was saying, Mr. Lundborg knows diamonds and knows how and when and where to buy them. He's got some beauties in stock just now.

You don't buy a diamond every year, but when you do, you want a good one. Come in and talk to Mr. Lundborg. There isn't anything in his store that he'd rather talk about than his stock of diamonds.

It is to be known as the Cinderella Dancing Party. Committees will be appointed to arrange the program, decorating of the hall and general planning of the dance. A large visiting delegation from the range and surrounding towns is expected.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

Earl Fitzsimmons succeeded in pulling a stunt Thursday evening at Gull Lake that makes a commendable fish story.

Resurrecting a moth eaten fish line and attaching a rusty bug he embarked in an unpainted and worn boat to practice casting in anticipation of the next fishing party.

About 20 feet from shore while making preparations to anchor before the sun went down he was stopped in his operations by a tug on his line and like a pirate of old, made haste to see what treasure the lake had withheld.

The treasure proved to be a husky great northern pike, weighing 10 pounds that had eluded the spearmen's lines during the past winter yet evidently could not resist the appeal of getting acquainted with an antiquated insect in its last stages of servitude.

Preparations Completed by House and Social Committee for Event Tomorrow

IN BEAUTIFUL HALL

Elks Calendar for June Includes Flag Day Exercises; Public Invited

Preparations made by the house and social committee of Brainerd Lodge of Elks gives assurance that the dance tomorrow evening at the beautiful hall in the Elks Temple will be largely attended. The committee is composed of A. P. Drogseth, William J. Lyons, Fred Cartwright, James McGarry, John Cuddihy, and Dr. L. F. Hawkinson.

Lou's band of six pieces which also played at the dedication exercises will furnish the music. Invitations to this dance were issued by the committee and mailed out early last week.

On the Elks calendar for June is the flag day exercises to be held Tuesday evening, June 14 in the Elks hall and to which the public is cordially invited. The exercises are a part of the regular ritual of the Elks and the officers under the direction of Exalted Ruler Roland G. Jenkins are memorizing their parts.

Mothers Day was recently observed by the lodge and the exercises as set forth in the ritual were exemplified in a most impressive manner. It is the first time that this Mothers Day ritual was exemplified in local lodge history. Musical numbers included solos by A. C. Mraz and Roland G. Jenkins, and a duet by the two with a piano accompaniment by Miss Edie Drexler. Dr. G. I. Badeaux sang a solo and his accompaniment was played by Mrs. Walter F. Wieland.

At the special meeting recently held Brainerd lodge of Elks continued their campaign for an increased membership and initiated twelve candidates.

THE STORY SO FAR
Amaryllis Minton and John Guido Forrester are brought together as children. From the very first they love each other, and this devotion is the keynote of their lives. John has been away in Italy and on his return goes for a cruise on the Minton yacht, before he sees Amaryllis. The yacht is destroyed, and Amaryllis in her despair goes to his father, Mr. Forrester, and tells him of the disaster; though broken himself he tries to comfort the girl by telling her how much his boy loved her. They hear music approaching.

Wide eyed, Amaryllis and John Forrester stared at each other. Then John Forrester cried: "Yes! Yes, John?"

The boy's voice came clearly: "I had the rottenest luck! Just a yaller cur! Just a common yaller cur upset the whole thing and I got left, Dad! And I don't know as I care so very much. I was afraid to go all the time for fear Amaryllis might come and I wouldn't be here."

"Stay there!" called John Forrester. "Stay right where you are and tell me what happened."

"Well, not much of anything," said John Guido. "I made the boat and I was on the yacht with all my stuff, and I happened to run my hand in my pocket just as we were cutting loose and I found that letter you told me to post about the sale of your last picture. I told one of the boys to tell them to hold on a minute and I ran across the gang plank to post the letter. He said he would go straight and tell them to wait for me. He must have forgotten. Anyway, I raced down the dock and I shoved the letter into the mail box, and as I turned, where men were unloading a freight boat, a big box fell down and landed right square on a little yaller cur—the commonest little cur that ever homed around a dock. One of the men laughed when the cur's head stuck out and he howled; and I couldn't stand it. I got him out. One leg was broken. He held it up and before I knew what I was doing I had broken some splinters from the box—I had no knife—and I had torn up my handkerchief and I was so busy making some splints and setting his leg and binding it up that I didn't realize how long I was taking. I thought they would wait for me; but when I got him fixed and set down and started back the place where the boat had been was vacant. I ran with all my might, but that yacht was away out on the ocean. Its sails were up and it was going like a white bird. I couldn't find anything I could hire to overtake it. I was so disappointed I sat down on a post and I bet I cried. I bet I cried like a spanked baby!

"Then on a sudden I remembered that I had not wanted to go so very badly anyway, and maybe Amaryllis would come. So I went back and I hunted up the yaller cur and I took him up in my arms and I walked all the way back. I walked all night. I just didn't want to hire anything, and I didn't want to ride. I'm all tired out and I'm hungry, and so is the dog. He got pretty heavy before the night was over, but I got him here safe where I can take care of him. I've got to make a better splint so he won't be lame all his life. He was so disappointed I sat down on a post and I bet I cried. I bet I cried like a spanked baby!"

John Guido, do you know how much you mean to me?"

ROSCOE WILLIAMSON (Robert by baptism) entered the huge store-room and made his way among the rows of filing cabinets.

"Hey, there, Ro, what you doin' down there?" A voice came from somewhere in the depths and Williamson carefully made his way through the maze of boxes until he located the speaker.

"Hi, John! Gov'nor sent me down to root out the papers on the Conley case. You know, those people who sued us about the water main running to the factory. . . . Say," he added, suddenly changing the subject, "who's the little red-headed Jane in father's office? Just glimpsed her as she was leaving yesterday afternoon."

"Ah, see what you've been missing by being away at college. That's Elizabeth Powell, the nicest little kid ever wielded a lipstick. Her father was a judge. Down on her uppers, and had to take a job."

"Watch me make a killin'! You know I always had a way with girls."

"Absolutely irresistible!" said John Fortune drily, but Williamson missed the slight tone of sarcasm in his voice and plunged ahead with his plans.

"I'll have her eating out of my hand before six weeks are over. Watch me!"

"Get out o' here. You're too darned good-looking to be human."

Fortune kicked at him and went on with his own search among the files.

Williamson procured the papers, he was sent for and hurried to the elevator and upstairs, scrutinized himself carefully in the little mirror in the cloak room, then sauntered into his father's office.

He felt the impression he was creating and was satisfied, but refrained from glancing toward Miss Powell's desk. In fact, he did not see her desk, he was in a brown study, but he was suddenly roused from his little reverie by his father's rasping voice:

"Where the devil have you been all this time and what are you doin' walkin' in here lookin' like a moon calf? Here, hand me those papers and get busy."

Williamson flushed with mortification and anger. Involuntarily his eyes went toward Miss Powell's desk. A sudden joyful weakness engulfed him as he realized that her chair was empty.

"Please remember that I'm a man now, father. You can't talk like that to me." His voice was surprisingly quiet and calm. He placed the papers on his father's desk and left the room. As the door closed the old man chuckled to himself.

"Didn't know he had it in him," he mused, half pleased.

Williamson had a pretty fair technique with girls. As a rule he knew the ones who would respond to rushing and the ones whose acquaintance had to be cultivated more slowly. However, both methods failed with Elizabeth.

"You know how it is," she would say, "I don't think employees should go out with their employers' sons. Business and social things should always be kept apart."

"Hang business!" he said after his third month of refusals. "I'll make dad fire you if you don't believe."

"If you do," she taunted, "I shall accept a position as secretary to Judge Webster, an old friend of father's in Maxton, and then I'll be two hundred miles away."

"Oh, darn!" he ejaculated desperately.

As time passed he was certain at moments that she was actually flirting with him, yet if she liked him why did she not let him take her out? Things were getting pretty nearly unbearable. Fortune remembered Williamson's boast in the storeroom six months before and was not too delicate to remind him of it occasionally.

"You wait, I'll surprise you yet," was Williamson's mysterious retort, but how he was to do it he had not the least idea.

At last one day at lunch time when his father had left the office he did something that amazed him more than anyone else. When Elizabeth walked in her little white sports suit, her red lips puckered as she whistled some popular air, he rose and went toward her.

"Elizabeth," he said, taking her in his arms, "I know I oughtn't to propose to you here, but you won't let me call and I'm mad about you. I love you red hair and your little fiery temper and I'm going to marry you if it's the last thing I do on earth, so you might as well submit."

To his astonishment she did. She let him kiss her soft red hair, her neck, her cheeks, her lips.

"You're so sweet, so sweet," he murmured happily. "But why did you always squelch my advances?" he asked after awhile.

"Because I was in the storeroom that morning you were bragging about being such a lady killer and I couldn't help hearing, so I decided to give you a run for it," she laughed.

"I'm a chaste man," he said humbly. "I've changed a lot since those days."

"You certainly have, Robert," she smiled.

Early Tax Exemptions

Cows were exempt from taxation in Ohio under the act of February 3, 1925. That act was the first provision for general property taxation and there were many exemptions, certain kinds of property being regarded as important in a new settlement. However, the cow exemption covered only one cow in the name of any one owner. The exemption was to encourage every householder to have a cow. Among other forms of property exempted were factories producing nails, leather, glass, salt, cotton or woolen goods, grist and saw mills, paper mills and distilleries. Whisky seems to have been looked upon then as an indispensable product. To encourage purchase of lands in the state by settlers, the act provided that such lands should be free from taxation for five years after the purchase.—Detroit News.

Excuse Not All Bad

When I make an excuse for myself—and goodness knows I have made many of them—I always feel some what guilty. Yet I am not sure that the excuse habit is entirely without its good side. It evidences at least a disposition to make matters appear better than they really are, and this, in turn, evidences a pride or self-respect of a sort, which qualities are commendable to some extent. The difficulty lies in one's inability to repair consequences in this way. As Lem Gidge said to the family cow: "Your eyes are wellspring of innocence and your bearing is that of blamelessness, but the milk's spilled and your foot's in the bucket just the same, dodblast you!"—Portland Oregonian.

Oldtime Home Brewing

Brewing beer was a respectable household task among families along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers 9,000 years ago. Evidence of this high antiquity of the craft of brewing and its place in ancient social systems of Babylonia and Egypt has been traced by German scientists of the Society of History and Bibliography of Brewing. There were laws about drinking in those days, the report shows. Certain cations of beer were allowed to each class of workers. Beer was also used in mixing medicines, and as an offering to the gods. Brewing was an organized business as early as 5000 B. C., it is stated.

Use of "Assignats"

The assignats or notes issued by the French revolutionary government between 1793 and 1796 were used as currency until they became valueless. They were issued on the security of lands of the crown, the church, the nobles and emigres, which had been appropriated, and they were inconvertible except in payment for the public lands. The total issue of assignats was over 45,000,000,000 francs.

"Commonwealths"

A commonwealth is a state in which the law of the people is supreme. The United states is a federal commonwealth. There are several states which were sovereign before the federation known as the United States was formed and which have retained the title "commonwealth." These are Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Massachusetts.

Waste in Oil Production

In mining oil there is much waste. In some instances as much as ten barrels are left in the ground in getting out one. Also more natural gas is blown into the air when measured from the standpoint of energy, than the energy value of all the oil thus recovered.

you hear? Do you understand that John Guido is here?"

Amaryllis nodded and clung tighter.

Then came the voice of John Guido again:

"Father, will you fix a bath for me? I'm in the awfulest mess! Couldn't always see where I was going in the night. Got off the road sometimes, and this yaller cur wasn't any too clean to begin with. He must have a bath, too. But I want mine first, and food—real food. Then, Father, I'm going down to that wonderful bench with little loves all over it by the striped grass bed, and I am going to sit there until Amaryllis comes. But I must be clean before I go, Father."

"All right. In just a minute," said John Forrester. "Of course, you couldn't go to Amaryllis unless you were clean, clean in your body as you have kept your heart and your soul for her, Son. You did not hear any word of the boat, Boy? You don't know anything about it?"

"Why, there wasn't anything to know," said John Guido. "They were skimming out on the ocean hitting up the coast toward Maine."

"All right," said John Forrester. "I'll be with you in a second."

He whirled Amaryllis around and gently pushed her before him through the front door and out on the veranda.

"Go around the outside way and wait until I get him inside," he said. "Then go down to the seat beside the white euryngia and I'll help him get cleaned up, and I'll tell him what he needs to know before he sees you. I'll send him to you as quickly as it can be done."

Then he gathered Amaryllis up in

He felt the impression he was creating and was satisfied, but refrained from glancing toward Miss Powell's desk. In fact, he did not see her desk. He was in a brown study, but he was suddenly roused from his little reverie by his father's rasping voice:

"Where the devil have you been all this time and what are you doin' walkin' in here lookin' like a moon calf? Here, hand me those papers and get busy."

Williamson flushed with mortification and anger. Involuntarily his eyes went toward Miss Powell's desk. A sudden joyful weakness engulfed him as he realized that her chair was empty.

"Please remember that I'm a man now, father. You can't talk like that to me." His voice was surprisingly quiet and calm. He placed the papers on his father's desk and left the room. As the door closed the old man chuckled to himself.

"Didn't know he had it in him," he mused, half pleased.

Williamson had a pretty fair technique with girls. As a rule he knew the ones who would respond to rushing and the ones whose acquaintance had to be cultivated more slowly. However, both methods failed with Elizabeth.

"You know how it is," she would say, "I don't think employees should go out with their employers' sons. Business and social things should always be kept apart."

"Hang business!" he said after his third month of refusals. "I'll make dad fire you if you don't behave."

"If you do," she taunted, "I shall accept a position as secretary to Judge Webster, an old friend of father's in Maxton, and then I'll be two hundred miles away."

"Oh, darn!" he ejaculated desperately.

As time passed he was certain at moments that she was actually flirting with him, yet if she liked him why did she not let him take her out? Things were getting pretty nearly unbearable. Fortune remembered Williamson's boast in the storeroom six months before and was not too delicate to remind him of it occasionally.

"You wait, I'll surprise you yet," was Williamson's mysterious retort, but how he was to do it he had not the least idea.

At last one day at lunch time when his father had left the office he did something that amazed him more than anyone else. When Elizabeth walked in in her little white sports suit, her red lips puckered as she whistled some popular air, he rose and went toward her.

"Elizabeth," he said, taking her in his arms, "I know I oughtn't to propose to you here, but you won't let me call and I'm mad about you. I love your red hair and your little fiery temper and I'm going to marry you if it's the last thing I do on earth, so you might as well submit."

To his astonishment she did. She let him kiss her soft red hair, her neck, her cheeks, her lips.

"You're so sweet, so sweet," he murmured happily. "But why did you always squelch my advances?" he asked after awhile.

"Because I was in the storeroom that morning you were bragging about being such a lady killer and I couldn't help hearing, so I decided to give you a run for it," she laughed.

"I'm a chaste man," he said humbly. "I've changed a lot since those days."

"You certainly have, Robert," she smiled.

He winced as she called him Robert, but decided that after all the name was more manly, so he let Roscoe go into the discard along with the other ghosts of his college life.

Early Tax Exemptions

Cows were exempt from taxation in Ohio under the act of February 3, 1825. That act was the first provision for general property taxation and there were many exemptions, certain kinds of property being regarded as important in a new settlement. However, the cow exemption covered only one cow in the name of any one owner. The exemption was to encourage every householder to have a cow. Among other forms of property exempted were factories producing nails, leather, glass, salt, cotton or woolen goods, grist and saw mills, paper mills and distilleries. Whisky seems to have been looked upon then as an indispensable product. To encourage purchase of lands in the state by settlers, the act provided that such lands should be free from taxation for five years after the purchase.—Detroit News.

Excuse Not All Bad

When I make an excuse for myself—and goodness knows I have made many of them—I always feel some what guilty. Yet I am not sure that the excuse habit is entirely without its good side. It evidences at least a disposition to make matters appear better than they really are, and this, in turn, evidences a pride or self-respect of a sort, which qualities are commendable to some extent. The difficulty lies in one's inability to repair consequences in this way. As Lem Gidge said to the family cow: "Your eyes are wellspring of innocence and your bearing is that of blamelessness, but the milk's spilled and your foot's in the bucket just the same, dodblast you!"—Portland Oregonian.

Oldtime Home Brewing

Brewing beer was a respectable household task among families along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers 9,000 years ago. Evidence of this high antiquity of the craft of brewing and its place in ancient social systems of Babylonia and Egypt has been traced by German scientists of the Society of History and Bibliography of Brewing. There were laws about drinking in those days, the report shows. Certain rations of beer were allowed to each class of workers. Beer was also used in mixing medicines, and as an offering to the gods. Brewing was an organized business as early as 5,000 B. C., it is stated.

Use of "Assignats"

The assignats or notes issued by the French revolutionary government between 1789 and 1793 were used as currency until they became valueless. They were issued on the security of lands of the crown, the church, the nobles and emigrants, which had been appropriated, and they were inconvertible except in payment for the public lands. The total issue of assignats was over 45,000,000,000 francs.

"Commonwealths"

A commonwealth is a state in which the law of the people is supreme. The United States is a federal commonwealth. There are several states which were sovereign before the federation known as the United States was formed and which have retained the title "commonwealth." These are Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Massachusetts.

Waste in Oil Production

In mining oil there is much waste. In some instances as much as ten barrels are left in the ground in getting out one. Also more natural gas is blown into the air when measured from the standpoint of energy, than the energy value of all the oil thus recovered.
